President Opens Door to Possible Summit Parley

By JOHN SCALI

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower has cautiously opened the door to a summertime summit meeting with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, provided foreign ministers somehow lay the advance groundwork.

At the same time he gave notice the United States will fight rather than yield to the Soviet demand that Allied troops leave West Berlin so it can become a "free city."

"We can not try to purchase peace by forsaking two million free people of Berlin," Eisenhower said.

The President spoke on Monday night in a special television-radio report to the nation on the mounting Berlin crisis.

He charged the Soviet Union has "deliberately created a war threat to enforce its Berlin demands, and indicated appeasement would be worse than useless."

"War would become more likely if we gave way and encouraged a rule of terrorism rather than a rule of law and order," he said.

"On the other hand," he said, "the risk of war is minimized if we stand firm."

Whatever comes, he said, the American people "now have and will continue to have a modern, effective and adequate military establishment."

In general, Congress members of both parties backed Eisenhower's declaration of firmness in the Berlin situation. Republicans welcomed, and some Democrats challenged, his assessment of the nation's military strength.

Eisenhower confidently cited the nation's "long-range nuclear deterrent force, plus 41 types of missiles, under development or under development, as powerful enough to resist communist challenge, despite domestic critics who are urging him to spend."

Penalty of Love Slayer Uncertain

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—What penalty the state will seek against Mrs. Connie Nicholas for the slaying of her married lover outside the apartment of his younger woman friend still was a mystery today.

The state challenged and removed three prospective jurors on the opening day of Mrs. Nicholas' first-degree murder trial Monday when they said they couldn't vote for the death penalty.

But Dep. Prosecutor Judson R. Haggerty told a newsman the action didn't necessarily indicate the prosecution would press for the supreme penalty for the 42-year-old, twice-divorced secretary.

She is charged with the fatal shooting of Forrest Teel, 54, in his white Cadillac outside the apartment of Miss Laura Mowrer last July 21.

She was pale from her long stay in a hospital recovering from an overdose of sleeping pills she took in a suicide attempt after the shooting.

Teel was executive vice president of Eli Lilly & Co., big Indianapolis pharmaceutical manufacturing firm.

The state is expected to attempt to prove that Mrs. Nicholas bought the small revolver with which Teel was shot with the intention of killing him. She has said she bought the gun for protection on a planned trip to California, and that she shot in self defense when Teel struck her.

Parade Opens With a Bang in New York

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Wild West parade started St. Patrick's Day off with a bang in the nation's capital today.

Cowboys, Indians and a brass band took a statue of Charlie Russell, late great Western cowboy painter, on a ride.

A stage coach, carrying shotgun guards and girls garbed in Cowgirl costumes, also trailed along as a statue of Russell was hauled a mile from the Smithsonian Institution to the Capitol.

The statue, to be installed in the Capitol's famed Statuary Hall Thursday, rode erect and unheeded on a truck. Riding the same truck were Blackfoot Indians from Montana, wearing colorful native costumes.

A military band played Western tunes as the paraders passed a reviewing stand on the Senate Office building steps.

Sens. James E. Murray and Mike Mansfield and Rep. Leo McClellan of Montana Democrats, sat in the stand. The fourth member of the Montana congressional delegation, Rep. Leroy Anderson, Democrat, rode the lead horse. Other riders included Sen. Francis Case (RSD).

Russell, who died in 1926, painted hundreds of Western pictures in Montana while working as a cowboy.

Attorneys Insist States to Resist All Integration

By JOHN R. STARR

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Attorneys general of several Southern states said today their governments stood prepared to resist integration by all possible means "within the framework of the law."

The officials were interviewed while attending the Southern Regional Conference of Attorneys General. School segregation was not a topic at the conference which dealt with problems of law enforcement at the state level.

"The people of Alabama are dead set against forced integration," said MacDonald Mac Gallion, Alabama attorney general, "but they want to work within the limits of the law."

Gallion said his chief concern was with the possibility that violence might accompany attempts to integrate public schools.

"We have danger areas and that concerns me," Gallion said. "But the Legislature has given the governor several powers to combat integration, including school closing, and we feel we are prepared for legal resistance."

"My state always has protected the rights of minorities and will continue to do so," said Atty. Gen. Jack Cromillon of Louisiana. "But my people are opposed to integration and will do everything possible to prevent it."

Atty. Gen. Daniel R. McLeod of South Carolina said he felt a law cutting off state funds to integrated schools and to the schools from which Negro students transferred would preserve segregation in his state.

Atty. General Eugene Cook of Georgia said his state has "unconditionally committed to preserve segregation."

Cook asserted that he thought Georgia could sustain this position within the framework of the U. S. Constitution.

Atty. Gen. Malcolm B. Seawell of North Carolina and George I. McCannless of Tennessee said the sentiment of their people was overwhelmingly against integration, although there has been some segregation in both states.

McCannless said he expected to appear before a Senate subcommittee in the next few days to speak in opposition to current civil rights proposals.

Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett of Arkansas, host to the delegates, also said he had been invited to appear before the Senate Judiciary Subcommittee. Hearings are tentatively scheduled to start tomorrow.

Bennett said proponents of civil rights proposals would testify first and the Committee Chairman, Sen. Sam Ervin Jr. (D-NC) had told him he would advise him of a date on which he could appear. Bennett plans to accept the invitation.

Burns Resigns as a City Director

Last night the Hope Board of Directors switched the city electrical inspection job to the Electrical Department with Jack Fielding as head inspector and William Butler and Buck Goodwin.

The group also closed a section of Walker Street that splits the Yorgar campus. There will be no more through traffic and the Police Department was advised to erect signs at each entrance so designating. This action was taken for the safety and welfare of students.

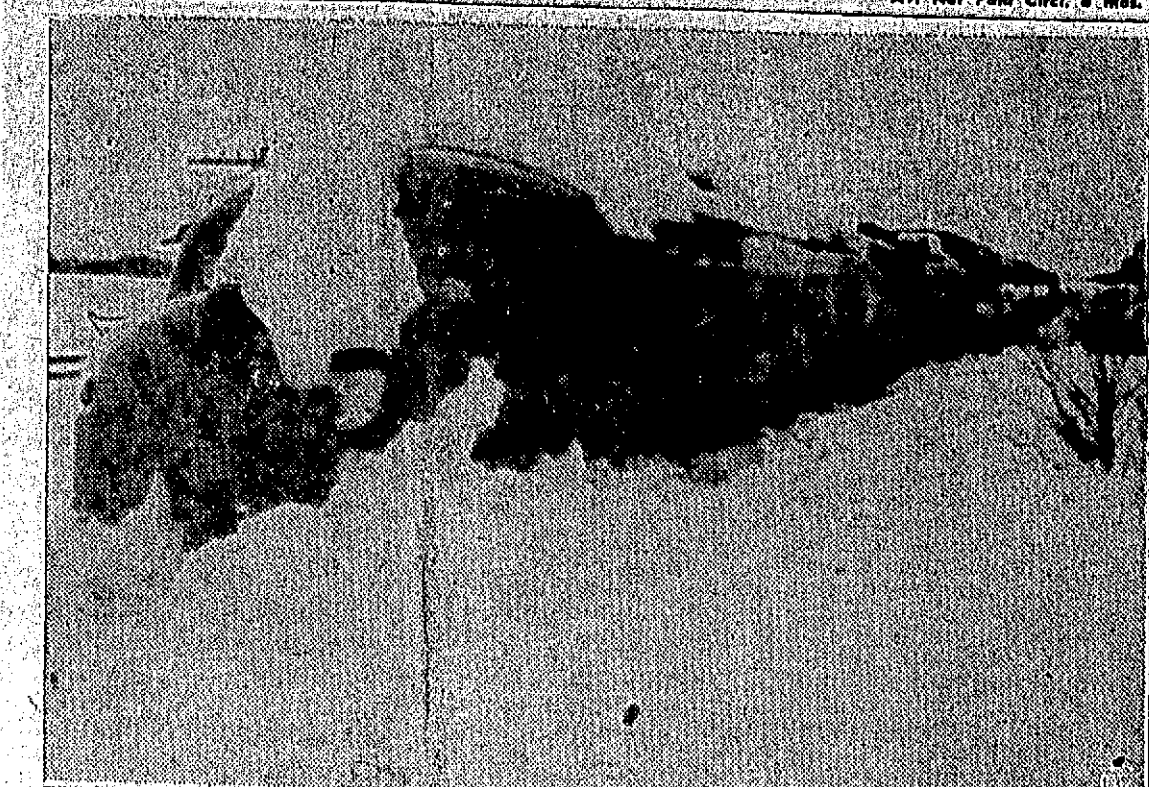

The resignation of Herbert Burns as a director was read. Mr. Burns will soon move outside the city limits. No action was taken but his successor will have to be elected.

The group commended Rep. Talbot Fild Jr. for his "effective representation of cities" during the legislative session.

Bids were opened and a two-ton truck was purchased from Nunn-Pentecost Motor Co.

Calls Editor State's Big Renegade

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Gov. Orval E. Faubus today referred to Executive Editor Harry S. Ashmore of the Arkansas Gazette as "the state's greatest renegade since Powell Clayton."

Faubus used the words in disapproving a tongue-in-cheek legislative resolution to change the name of Toaduck Ferry on the Arkansas River to Ashmore Landing.

Clayton was a "carpetbagger" governor and U. S. senator in the immediate post-Civil War period. He inspired wide enmity among the state's residents.

The Gazette editorially opposed state operation of the ferry, which travels between Faulkner and Perry Counties.

"In my judgment, many people of the state would consider the renaming of the ferry as an act that would defame a well known landmark by naming it for a man regarded by many as the state's greatest renegade since Powell Clayton," Faubus wrote in a veto message dated yesterday and filed today with Secretary of State C. G. Hall.

Despite the qualifying phrases, the thought apparently could be taken as Faubus in view of his previous attacks on Ashmore, who has been one of the governor's most persistent critics in the protracted integration controversy.

Ashmore laughed off the reference. "I think I'll just let this one float by," he said.

Some lawyers had said that no gubernatorial action was necessary on the resolution, which they termed merely an expression of legislative feeling and not binding on the Highway Commission, which would have to make any change. The resolution was adopted by both legislative branches during the recent session.

Too Little Known About Radiation

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Public Health Service says not enough is known about what radiation in repeated small doses does to people.

That research field, Secretary of Welfare Arthur S. Flemming told a news conference Monday, is one that will get major attention in the year starting July 1.

The best he had to say of current standards is that they are "the only bench mark now available."

Ike's Speech Welcomed in W. Europe

LONDON (AP)—President Eisenhower's speech on the Berlin crisis and the possibility of a summit conference won a hearty welcome in West Germany and Britain today.

Elsewhere in Western Europe it received top play in the press, although there was no immediate editorial or official reaction.

Mayor Willy Brandt of West Berlin said the speech "reaffirms our conviction that we can truly count on our American friends."

The British Foreign Office had no formal comment. British officials said privately they regarded it as an excellent speech.

A spokesman for the West German government in Bonn declared that the speech was a timely warning of possible catastrophe, while making known his readiness to negotiate.

First Communist reaction came from ADN, the East German news agency. It declared the speech made it plain that the United States "would not be afraid to unleash a war."

Neither Tass, the Soviet news agency, nor the home radio in the Soviet Union carried any mention of Eisenhower's speech.

In New Delhi, Prime Minister Nehru told the Indian Parliament he welcomed Eisenhower's acceptance of a foreign ministers' conference and a possible summit meeting.

Two Stick in Struck GE Factory

BLOOMFIELD, N.J. (AP)—Two shop stewards, the last of a production force which once numbered 2,000, stuck it out today in the closed General Electric Co. air-conditioning plant.

The company Monday said it still in strike by a few workers had made further production impossible, so it closed the plant.

The shutdown came two weeks ahead of schedule. GE planned it for April 1. The firm stopped making heavy air-conditioning units, shifted part of its local operation to Southern plants and was only filling final orders here.

Nearly a score of workers launched the sit-in strike last Friday in a protest against the April 1 closing.

When the day shift of 300 workers arrived Monday, the workers were greeted by the announcement of immediate shutdown. Four of the demonstrators stayed on.

One went home because his wife is a hospital patient. Another got cold chills and collapsed.

Advisers Urge More Money for Military

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower's special advisers on foreign aid today urged an additional 400 million dollars in military assistance primarily to arm NATO countries with missiles and jet aircraft.

The funds would be an increase in the $3,930,000,000 budgeted for foreign aid in the year starting July 1.

The ten-man bipartisan committee, headed by William H. Draper Jr., also urged that loans for economic development of the less-developed nations be stepped up to at least one billion dollars a year by July, 1960.

The committee, in a preliminary report to the President, said it had reached the unanimous conclusion that the foreign aid program should be put on a long-range continuing basis.

"We believe the program essential to our own security and that of the free world and are convinced that we can afford what is necessary," the committee declared. "What we cannot afford are the cost and risks involved in abandoning or emasculating the mutual security program."

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Mrs. James Smith delivered her own baby while watching an old movie on television in her living room.

"I'm feeling fine," she said Monday, two days after the event. "I plan to have all the rest of my children that way."

Mrs. Smith, 38, has three other children, all born in a hospital. She watched George Raft in "Lucky Mick" (Calif.) throughout her labor while her husband slept in the next room. She woke him by pounding on the wall and presented him with an 8½ pound boy.

Integration Laws Before High Court

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Arguing that the Arkansas Constitution is not violated by an anti-integration law, attorneys for Gov. Orval E. Faubus yesterday filed in the state Supreme Court an answer to a suit seeking to overturn the law.

The 18-page brief called the law, Act 4 of 1958, a "valid exercise of the legislature's police power" and said it was necessary for the peace of the Little Rock School District.

Gov. Faubus closed the four public high schools in Little Rock last September rather than yield to court-ordered integration.

The challenge suit was filed by Attorney Kenneth Coffelt on behalf of Mrs. Gerie Garrett of Little Rock. It was dismissed in Pulaski Chancery Court several weeks ago but Coffelt appealed to the Supreme Court.

Mrs. Garrett's suit contends that Act 4 should be voided because it violates the state Constitution, in that a constitutional provision says "the state shall ever maintain a general, suitable and efficient system of public schools."

Faubus' attorneys replied that the provision "does not state when, where or how such schools are to be maintained—these particulars being left to the wisdom of the legislative body."

When other public schools are being opened in the state by "voluntarily displaced students," the brief said, "it is hardly to be said the state has failed to provide gratuitous instruction" under the state Constitution.

The brief said Faubus had a right to close the Little Rock high schools last September because "there is certainly no reason to presume that the legislature is without authority to close one or more schools under its police powers if the public peace, safety and welfare is threatened."

The action called attention to "violence and bloodshed" which flared at Little Rock Central High School in September, 1957, after nine Negro students were admitted.

Faubus' attorneys said the Virginia school closing law, which recently was declared unconstitutional by the Virginia Supreme Court, was different from the Arkansas situation. This law, they said, was counter to a section of the Virginia Constitution which gave supervision of local schools to school boards.

The Arkansas Constitution, the brief said, has no such provision but states that "the supervision of public schools and execution of laws regulating the same shall be vested in and confided to such officers as may be provided by the General Assembly."

Filing the brief for Faubus were Attorney General Bruce Bennett and the governor's attorneys, Walter L. Pope, Kay Matthews and Tom Harper.

In another action, Faubus asked U. S. District Court here to dismiss a supplemental complaint challenging the constitutionality of Acts 4 and 5 of 1958.

A three judge federal court is scheduled to rule May 4 on the complaint filed by 42 Negro plainiffs in the Little Rock integration case.

Act 4 allows the governor to close schools faced with the court-ordered integration and Act 5 provides for withholding of state aid from such schools.

Threatens to List Foreign Aid Amounts

Hays said he would reveal country by country what the United States "is proposing to give to these dictators and others."

Surprise Storm Dumps Snow on Michigan Areas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A surprise snow-bite parts of Michigan with a foot of snow today, causing hazardous driving conditions.

The snow ranged from 10 to 12 inches at Grand Haven, while the Detroit area had 3½ inches.

Much of the East, however, had dry and fairly cool weather in the wake of snow, rain and wild storms over the weekend.

Sides also were clear from the Rockies westward to the Pacific Coast with a general warming trend reported in most areas.

There were a few wet spots. Moderate to heavy rain fell in most sections of Florida. The wet belt extended into southern Georgia and the Carolina coast and eastern Louisiana. Showers sprinkled parts of the western Gulf.

Light snow spread eastward from southern Wisconsin and northern Illinois across Indiana and lower Michigan and headed into the Northeast. Falls were generally from one to two inches.

A - Weapon for Cancer Search Ready

WASHINGTON (AP)—A powerful new atomic weapon for research in cancer was announced today, directed by 10 billion and clears a second to a half-inch square area of tissue has gone into operation, the Atomic Energy Commission announced today.

The device, the first nuclear reactor designed exclusively for medical use, is located in the medical research center at AEC's Brookhaven National Laboratory, Upton, N.Y.

The AEC said the new million-watt reactor was a "miniaturized" version of the larger atomic energy at 9:44 p.m. Sunday. It is expected to be ready for use with patients later this year.

One of its chief functions will be to expand research on a brain tumor treatment technique pioneered at Brookhaven.

Over the last few years, AEC doctors told a reporter, a couple of dozen hopeless cases of brain tumor have been treated by the method. And while no cures were achieved—in fact, none were expected—AEC scientists believe life may have been prolonged a couple of months.

The hope now is to develop techniques for applying the method on additional types of brain tumor, and perhaps even treating certain types of cancers in other parts of the body—always with the hope of steadily improving the results.

Three Killed in Collision at Jonesboro

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP)—A head-on automobile collision fatally injured three persons and critically injured another near here yesterday.

Waylin Chessor, 31, a Paragould insurance man, his mother, Mrs. Edna Chessor, 64, and a 14-year-old son, T. J. Cassidy, 14, of Trumann were killed.

T. J. Cassidy, 59, also of Trumann, was hospitalized at Jonesboro and reported in critical condition. He suffered chest, side and head injuries and a broken left arm.

The accident happened about six miles north of Jonesboro on State Highway One.

Witnesses told State Trooper Buren Jackson that the Cassidy car, headed south, went out of control, crossed the center line of the highway and smashed into the Chessor car.

Mrs. Chessor died instantly. Chessor and Mrs. Cassidy died about an hour later in a Jonesboro hospital.

Jackson said Chessor was driving one vehicle but he could not determine who was driving the Cassidy car.

Urges Quick Approval of Lewis Strauss

WASHINGTON (AP) — New York's senators said today Lewis L. Strauss was picked for secretary of commerce so he could serve as chief of staff for the economic war with Soviet Russia.

Sens. Jacob K. Javits and Kenneth B. Keating (R-NY) urged the Senate Commerce Committee at a public hearing to give quick approval to the nomination.

There is some opposition to the appointment, arising chiefly out of controversies when Strauss was chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.

"The Russians expect the time bomb that they will explode eventually will be an economic one," Javits said, adding that because of his experience and background Strauss "understands the challenge of economic warfare."

Keating said President Eisenhower had selected Strauss "as his chief of staff for this trade war."

"Strauss, 63-year-old retired Naval reserve admiral and investment banker, was on hand for the opening of the hearings which may continue intermittently for several weeks.

Keating and Javits were the initial witnesses. Sen. Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash.), the committee chairman, explained that since Strauss has had long banking and business connections in New York and now owns a farm in Culpeper County, Va., he has asked the New York and Virginia senators to comment.

The two Virginia Democratic senators, Harry F. Byrd and A. Willis Robertson, both replied with letters urging confirmation of Strauss.

Magnuson said his committee plans an investigation of the Russian cold war offensive later.

Magnuson also indicated that opposition witnesses will not be heard until after the Senate's Easter recess, starting March 26.

Dominating the Eisenhower speech, however, were 46 words which appeared to move him a carefully measured step along the road to a summit conference. Khrushchev has been urging since last November.

Referring to the Allied reply being prepared to the most recent Soviet note, he said:

"It is my hope that thereby all of us can reach agreement with the Soviet Union on an early meeting at the level of foreign ministers."

"Assuming developments that justify a summer meeting at the summit, the United States would be ready to participate in this further effort," he added.

Eisenhower's mention of a possible heads of government meeting, along with his fixing of an approximate date, came just three days before Britain's Prime Minister Harold Macmillan was due in town for strategy talks.

Macmillan was reported ready to press Eisenhower for an agreement to convene such a top-level Big Four meeting as the only way to ease European tensions.

The British leaders' is understood to want a summit meeting regardless of whether a prior formal ministers conference makes any progress on Germany's future.

Eisenhower implied he disagrees with Macmillan on this. He did not explain that developments he would consider as justifying a summit meeting.

One prominent Western diplomat flatly predicted on the basis of Eisenhower's remarks that a summit conference would be convened in August.

Conspicuously absent from Eisenhower's address also were his usual words of warning about the worldwide disillusionment that would follow an unsuccessful summit meeting.

Whatever his current thoughts on a summit meeting, Eisenhower made it clear he will not blindly accept Soviet demands.

Baptist High Officials to Air Problems

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Officials of Baptist High School will explain financial problems of the private institution to Baptist laymen at a meeting here tonight.

Board President Hardy L. Winburn said the school has run as much as 2,000-per month in the red since it opened last October for students displaced from closed Little Rock public high schools.

About 300 of the school's 367 students pay about $500 in tuition each month, Winburn said, but the school has depended on donations to pay for utilities and rental of equipment.

"The school is operating on a month to month basis," Winburn said. "So far it has just made it."

The school will remain open until July in order to complete a full academic year.

Ouachita Baptist College at Arkadelphia controls curriculum of the school but financial authority is vested in the local board.

Curtis R. Mathis, district director of the Internal Revenue Service, said today he did not know whether donations to private schools, such as Baptist and Little Rock Private School Corp.'s Raney High School, would be deductible for income tax purposes.

"We haven't made a determination yet," Mathis said. "Taxpayers who have made contributions will have to take a calculated risk of the schools being granted exemption status if they want to deduct on this year's returns."

The state revenue department has ruled such contributions will not be deductible from state taxes.

Telegrams Favorable to the President

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House said today it has received an unusually heavy flow of telegrams, practically all of them favorable to President Eisenhower's TV-radio address on the Berlin crisis.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said more than 600 messages had come in by 8:00 a.m. and that virtually all endorsed the President's stand.

Only about 20, Hagerty said, were less than 100 per cent in agreement with Eisenhower's position that the Western powers will not get out of Berlin but will agree to a summit conference if a preliminary meeting of foreign ministers indicates something worthwhile could be accomplished.

The President will not hold a news conference this week, Hagerty indicated. The President's heavy schedule this week, including hospital visits for visiting Irish President Sean T. O'Kelly and the later arrival of British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, would rule out his regular Wednesday meeting with newsmen.

Legislature Tax Conscious, Lawmaker Says

Editor's Note: This is No. 1 in a four-part series on the 82nd General Assembly.

BY JOHN R. STARR
LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Petty Rep. Paul Van Dusen summed up the 1999 General Assembly with these words: "This was the most tax-conscious Legislature I've seen in my 20 years here."

The refusal to raise any taxes clearly reflected the temper of the people, said Sen. Jack Shelton of Monticello.

Van Dusen, in the Senate, was proposed to increase gasoline and cigarette taxes and truck license fees. A watered-down truck license bill was "summarily destroyed" by the House. A proposed ton-mile tax on trucks never came to a vote.

"I guess the people are tired of the big 1997 tax package," said Revenue Commissioner J. Orville Cheney. "They just didn't want anything to do with taxes."

House proponents of the truck tax are going to have to boost some opposition.

"The trucking industry virtually asked for this tax," said one "can't understand why anyone would oppose it."

Opponent said privately he felt the trucking industry wanted an increase this year to head off the possibility of a larger increase in 1999.

"At the rate things are going, we're going to have to boost some taxes in 1999," the source said. "And I think the big trucks will be a prime target."

The Legislature even gave the harried taxpayer a small cut in the income levy by permitting deduction of the first $400 of federal income taxes from gross income for the purpose of computing state income taxes.

And many areas will get a tax cut as a result of changes in the reassessment law. Implementation of the law resulted in an increase for many taxpayers, while the various school districts were bringing millages into line with higher assessments. Now the school districts will be limited to revenue not exceeding 1.5 percent of the pre-reassessment levy.

The key law in the 1999 reassessment package extended the primary deadline to Dec. 31 of this year.

A handful of legislators came to Little Rock determined to kill the reassessment program. Many had predicted reassessment would be the big issue of the session.

Opponents were outmaneuvered, however, by appointment early in the session of a Joint Committee of Reassessment. The battles thus were fought out in committee instead of on the floor and proponents of the program won.

The committee recommended a package of legislation and every one of its measures sailed through both houses.

A slick trick stymied those who would have killed the program by refusing to vote an appropriation for the Assessment Co-Ordination Division. Twenty-six votes could have done this.

The Assessment Co-Ordination Division was "abolished" and reorganized as a department of the Public Service Commission so opponents of reassessment were faced with voting the Public Service Commission out of existence along with the department. This they were not willing to do.

The changes were made in reassessment laws give the local taxing units an opportunity to straighten things out at the local level," said Sen. Guy Jones of Conway. "If they don't, I feel sure we'll be faced with this problem again in 1999."

Found Guilty for Hiring Woman Killed

By JACK LEFLER

VENTURA, Calif. (AP) — A jury that reduced Elizabeth Duncan to tears when it convicted her of hiring the murder of her daughter-in-law, returns today to decide the punishment.

It has two alternatives—death in the gas chamber, or life in prison. But Mrs. Duncan still has a plea of innocent by reason of insanity to be settled before any sentence can take effect.

The 31-year-old defendant, smiling and optimistic, watched as it filed in to announce its verdict Monday at 5 p.m.—first degree murder conviction, calm at first, then burst into tears as she sat at the counsel table beside her with her head bowed.

"Don't worry too much, Frank," she said.

It was Frank's pregnant bride, Olga, 30, whose murder she was convicted of plotting.

When she was handcuffed and led back to her county jail cell, there her composure cracked.

She broke down and cried. She sobbed repeatedly to her son and her attorney, S. Ward Sullivan: "I can't understand how the jury could do that to me, because I didn't do it."

Frank Duncan had nothing to say. He sat beside his mother through the two-week trial. Testimony for her, he said, he could not believe she would harm Olga, even though she had tried to break up their marriage.

The prosecution charged that Mrs. Duncan, fiercely jealous of her daughter-in-law, offered $6,000 to two minor criminals, Augustine Buldonado 26 and Luis Moya 10, to get rid of the Canadian-born nurse.

It was 20 ft. high when I reached the door. I went up the stairs and knocked on Sandy's door. "Who is it?" she called.

"Me."

"She opened the door and as I stepped inside, she said, 'I was pretty sure it was you, but a girl can't be too careful.'"

"I nodded at her clothes. 'Go- ing somewhere?'

"Just to dinner."

"With me?"

"If you like, but I want you to know that I had another invitation. That nice young Stallings boy in the personnel office asked me — with dancing afterward."

"You mean Ivy League?"

"She laughed. 'Res really quite nice.'"

"I sat in a chair near the bed. 'How'd it go today?'

"All right, I guess. I'm dizzy from looking at personnel histories."

"Did you learn anything interesting?"

"Let's face it, Jim," she said soberly. "I'll take days to go through all those files."

"We've got to start someplace. No suspicious employees so far?"

"I found two psychos—at least they had psychiatric treatment."

Sandy took a notebook from the dresser, flipped it open and ran a finger down a page. "One is Daniel Cochran, 52, married, no children, press operator 11 years seniority. Lives at 16½ Fairmont. The other is Louis Gebhart 37, single, works in the shipping department, 14 years' seniority, lives at the Y.M.C.A."

Louis Gebhart was the name of the man Mike Brandon had said he had told to switch the shipping addresses on the wheels going to the Portage Foundry and the Alexander Steel Company. But he hadn't done it.

Sandy said, "I've odds of other names, to, but—"

"Never mind, I said. 'We can't check them all out. That Gebhart interests me though.'"

"Yep, Sandy said, sipping her hair again. 'Where are we going to eat?'

"Not here. Somebody from Burkey might see us together. I don't want that."

Maybe 10 miles from Maple Hill we approached a low white building set back from the road.

I turned in, parked, and as we entered the place, Sandy said, "Where's your hat?"

"I lost it, I said, and made no further comment."

A pleasant-faced elderly lady smiled a greeting. "Two?" she asked.

I nodded. Sandy and I followed her past a bar and into a large room filled with tables at which people were eating and drinking.

The first person I saw was Philip Varney, sitting behind Sandy, two tables away. Ginny, the daughter of Logan Masters, was with him. Varney and I saw each other at the same time. I nodded and raised an eyebrow. He flushed and looked away. Ginny Masters saw me then and cried, "Oh, there's Mr. Bennett." She pushed back her chair and came over to our table.

I stood up and said, "Hi, Ginny, and nodded at Sandy. "This is Miss Hollis."

Ginny smiled and looked Sandy over, her eyes sharply appraising. I said to Sandy, "Ginny is Mr. Masters' daughter."

"Oh?" Sandy raised her fine brows. "The boss' daughter?"

Ginny laughed gaily. "Please don't hold that against me. Do you work at Buckeye?"

"Yes, Sandy gave me a side-long look."

Philip Varney came over and stood beside Ginny. He looked uncomfortable, but, even so, he and Ginny made an attractive couple. She said, "Wed. ask you folks to join us but we're just leaving."

"Yes, Varney said, taking her arm. "Nice seeing you."

Ginny said, "Don't forget your promise, Mr. Bennett."

"I won't."

As Varney led her away she smiled back at me over a semibare shoulder.

Our drinks arrived as I sat down. Sandy took a sip.

"What, may I ask, did you promise that little charmer?"

"Nothing. She made it up. She just adores private eyes and yearns to be my assistant."

"How does she know you're a private eye?"

"She guessed. I told Sandy of the meeting at Masters' house the evening before."

Sandy said thoughtfully, "I wonder what Philip Varney thought when he saw you and me together."

"I can fix that, we met at the office, we're both staying at the inn and we just decided to have dinner together."

The hostess came up and said to me, "Excuse me, sir, but a gentleman would like to see you in the checkroom."

I winked at Sandy and went to the checkroom. Philip Varney stood there looking embarrassed.

"Bennett," he said in a low voice. "I would — uh — appreciate it if you didn't mention that you'd seen me with Ginny."

I grinned at him. "Particularly not Logan Masters?"

"Not anyone. He moved his hands. 'You see, Ginny is still under age, and since I work for her father — well, you understand, don't you?'

"Frankly, I don't know. Is it serious?"

He nodded soberly. "Yes, were going to be married, but we want to wait until Ginny is 18 before we tell her parents."

"Congratulations. You will be a

Man Kills His Two Children and Himself

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Two children wrote notes to their mother.

Then Gerald Ray Glass kept a log of events of the few minutes preceding the time when he and his children lost consciousness and died of carbon monoxide fumes in the family car.

The notes penciled by Glass said:

"It is now five minutes to eight. The engine is idling and the motor has been on 10 minutes."

"I am beginning to get sleepy."

"My heart is speeding up and pumping fast."

"My eyes are droopy but otherwise normal."

"We're talking about God and heaven."

Sheriff's deputies did not reveal the contents of the children's notes but said the sense of such marching in his coat of green on St. Patrick's Day.

In 1844, Custis declared: "Years after my mortal body shall have been laid in the bosom of our common mother, some honest Irish heart may come, and dropping a shamrock on my grave cry 'God bless him.'"

Two years ago, the National Capital Parks Service started planting shamrocks on the grave.

And now comes Sean Thomas O'Kelly, with shamrocks and an "honest Irish heart."

France Hurt Bid for U. S. Sub Secrets

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congressional sources said today France may have torpedoed her own bid for access to U.S. atomic submarine secrets by withholding her

President of Ireland in U. S. Visit

By WARREN ROGERS JR.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Sean Thomas O'Kelly of Ireland will be receiving a bit of a surprise this St. Patrick's Day and be after giving one of his own, he will.

From President Eisenhower himself O'Kelly will be getting 'twas reported, the news that the White House was designed by a son of Dublin, James Doban by name.

The White House staff has been researching it, they say, and it will be dropped, as casual as a Donegal air, into today's Eisenhower-O'Kelly palaver at the summit.

And fine news, it will be to the first Irish president ever to visit the new sod. O'Kelly let it be known on arrival at New York Monday. He felt right at home.

There's a grand parade from the airport to Hoban's White House, with Irishmen of all nationalities marching and cheering, and there's also a fine sign, there stories overhead, written in Gaelic.

"Cead mile failte," the sign says. "One hundred thousand welcomes."

As to Hoban, he walked off with the prize for the best looking White House design. He pocketed $500 and, in the 1790s, that was Killarney, dew.

But Sean O'Kelly has a surprise, too. According to an old Irish source, the most reliable kind, he will scatter shamrocks on the grave of George Washington Parke Custis in Arlington National Cemetery.

Custis, the son of the stepson of America's first president, was a Protestant of English descent. But never was a man so fond of the Irish or the Irish cause. No man of his time in Arlington, Va., could forget the sights of Custis' naval vessels, from NATO command.

Although certain French fleet units had been committed to the North Atlantic Treaty command in the event of war, France notified NATO officials last week she had decided to keep the entire Mediterranean fleet under French command.

The sources said privately that decision of the De Gaulle government could prove the clinching argument for denial of the request.

They contended the U.S. atomic energy law specifically provides that to be eligible for sharing such secrets, a nation must be making 'substantial contribution to the mutual defense and security' of the free world.

"To withdraw the fleet from the Allied command would seriously be in line with this provision," said a well placed congressional source who declined to be quoted by name.

There was no comment from the State Department.

France has asked, under the law, for a share of U. S. atomic submarine secrets and for permission to buy an American-made atomic power plant for such a vessel.

Across The Counter

W. E. White, Jr.

A recent advertisement for a new book on Small Business problems listed the chapter headings. One chapter is entitled "How to Plan The Best Insurance Program For Your Business." The sub-title: (Make Sure Your Insurance Really Is Protection).

The best advice we can give the average businessman is to choose a reliable insurance advisor — then follow his recommendations.

There are many different ways to insure your property. Probably no two people would agree 100% as to just exactly what kinds and amounts of insurance would best fit your needs.

But a competent advisor can study the needs of your business and come up with sound insurance suggestions.

Most "small" businessmen have to be a salesman, advertiser, man, bookkeeper, stock boy, public relations man, purchasing agent, etc. If honestly is too much to expect him to be an Insurance Expert as well.

The field of insurance is changing rapidly. Even those of us spending full time in it have to make a real effort to keep up.

That's why we say: Pick a reliable agency. Then place your insurance worries in their hands.

Naturally, we'd be pleased if you choose us. May We SERVE you?

A Growing Gas Transmission System Is a Busy Place For Engineers

Did you ever wonder what an engineer with a pipeline company does — exactly?

He's got a mighty important job at Texas Eastern. We've got all kinds — mechanical, chemical, electrical, civil, petroleum. They're found in all types of work — administrative, research and planning, compressor station and pipeline design and construction, drafting, communications, materials, budgets and plant records, just to name a few.

The engineer at Texas Eastern is a member of a vast technical team. For instance — if a customer needs more gas, say, 100 million cubic feet a day, it's not just a simple matter of someone saying "give it to them."

Gas reserve engineers have to determine that enough gas is available to fill the request — not just for a short time but for many years. Then the planning and research engineers go to work to determine how best to get the gas delivered (they may have to add a new compressor station, new pipeline or the system may carry the load just as it is).

The gas is available, a method to deliver it has been determined. The next step is to construct the needed facilities. Drafting engineers draw many plans, construction engineers plan sites for compressor stations and routes for new pipelines, material men begin purchasing needed equipment and supplies, contracts are planned and executed.

During this time engineers have been planning construction budgets and operating costs. Communications engineers have been planning the best equipment to install at the compressor station (if one is needed). And, anticipating the time when the work will be completed and the new facilities will be placed in operation, engineers handling plant records begin setting up records to keep accurate information on the plant property, its initial cost, operating costs, how it can be improved and things to keep in mind when new facilities are constructed.

Texas Eastern's large investment in a wide variety of engineering talent has proved to be a sound one. Returns on this investment are found in dependability and efficiency of system operation so customers know that with Texas Eastern handling the transportation job, natural gas will always be available to meet their needs.
